A Report

Rural transformation is a proactive and positive process of change and development of rural communities in the context of national and global social and economic changes. Transformation in rural context denotes the successive changing patterns conceived in rural set, in its structure, fact, form and character both in positive and negative direction. In Sociology, the concept of rural transformation has been interpreted as a concrete process of restructuring in society. It involves bringing features of urban environments into rural settings, changes to systems and processes that favorably impact rural people's standard of living and livelihoods. The main aim of the conference is to bring together researchers to discuss a roadmap for transforming rural India

Inaugural Function:

The inaugural function presided by Hon.Dr.Sarjerao Thombre Trustee, Pandit Dindayal Upadhaya Education Society and Director, Gopinath Mundhe Research Center, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University Aurangabad, Chief Guest Hon.Sanjay Salunke Dean, Faculty of Humanities Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University Aurangabad. Inaugurator &Keynote Speaker Hon. Dr. Manoj Kumar Jena Center for the Study of social system, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi. Principal Dr.S.R. Takle and Dr. Manjusha Nalgirkar, Convener, National Conference were on the dias. Introductory / Welcome speech was given by Principal Dr.S.R. Takle sir. Hon.Sanjay Salunke sir discussed that, Globalization affects on rural society and its traditional identity. In this globalization process India came under the influence of Capitalism. Globalization creates the opportunity of development to each and every person in rural society.’” There was a fascinating keynote presentation on how Globalization and Rural Transformation process persist in the present days. Dr. Manoj Kumar Jena said that, ‘Globalization is a happening phenomenon associated with other social processes called post-industrialization, post-modernization or the disorganization/reorganization of capitalism. Globalization has multi dimensional ramification on the rural life of India. It has been argued that globalization has produced equal and unequal benefits across different sections of society. It is important for the States and all stakeholders to create a favourable environment in which would enable the access to equal opportunities and benefits to all and will contribute in improving their quality of life.’

Lastly in Presidency address Dr. Sarjerao Thombre discussed about the co-relation of Globalization and Environment, he also stated his view about Pandit Deendyal Upadhyayas concept of Integrated Humanism. Dr. Manjusha Nalgirkar Convener, National Conference proposed a vote of thanks.
